ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Rockford is aware of the impacts our business activities have on the environment and the long-term effects these impacts can have on the sustainability of our business.

We have made a commitment to integrate environmental objectives into business planning decisions and consider environmental responsibilities as part of our normal operating procedures. As a part of this commitment, our employees are encouraged to be proactive in their work to minimise waste and reuse or recycle wherever possible.

In practice our environmental programme aims to minimise significant impacts through an intensive on-site recycling program, ongoing improvements in work practice, more efficient use of resources and continuing environmental monitoring. We will not endorse the activities of any staff member that would knowingly be in breach of our environmental obligations.

As a company we aim to achieve our objectives by:

- Actively reducing waste where possible
- Minimising pollution at the source
- Recycling wherever possible and practical
- Treatment of waste where possible
- Disposal methods which minimise undesirable effects on air, water and land
- Following the Rockford Emergency Response plan in the event of any accidents with potential to cause environmental harm
- Being signatories of the Australian Packaging Covenant (APC) through the South Australian Wine Industry Association (SAWIA) Mentor Program and actively being involved in meeting our obligations under the covenant

We ask all employees to proactively support our policy and discuss any opportunities which could benefit us in reaching our objectives and helping reduce our impact on the environment.

Yours Sincerely
